

How are diseases transmitted?

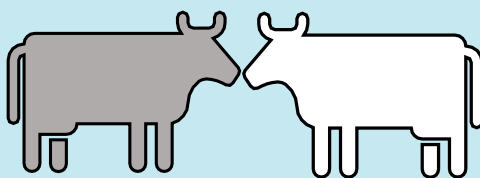

Oral transmission

Normally by swallowing the pathogen with contaminated feed or water.

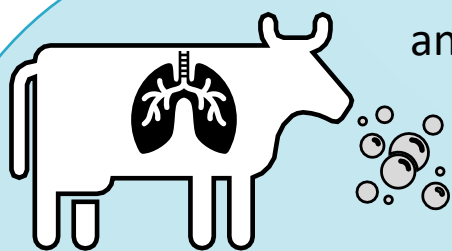

Blood transmission

Blood transmission via, for example, used syringes contaminated with infected blood.

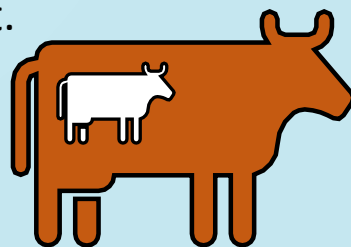

Direct contact

Direct contact, for example, between two animals or an animal and the environment.

Airborne

By inhaling the pathogen into their lungs.

Reproductive organs

Transmission via artificial insemination, mating or from a cow to a fetus.